Objectives of Programme

- The main Objective of the Program is to provide enough knowledge regarding HPLC as premier analytical technique used in many pharmaceutical applications.
- Newer column technologies allow faster and more efficient analysis of complex samples, chiral molecules and biomolecules.
- The rapid advancements of UHPLC and 2-D LC in combination with high-resolution MS have revolutionized life science research and promise to have even greater impact for clinical diagnostics.

The main Objective of the Program is to provide enough knowledge regarding HPLC as premier analytical technique used in many pharmaceutical applications.

Topics Covered:

1. Instrumentation: Ultra-HPLC (UHPLC) going mainstream.
2. Columns:  $2\mu m$ ,  $3\mu m$ , core shell & hybrid particles; novel bonding chemistries, hydrophilic interactions chromatography (HILIC), immobilized polysaccharide chiral phases, columns for biomolecules & biopharmaceutical.
3. Other's: liquid chromatography mass spectrometry (LC/MS) – particularly high-resolution MS (HRMS) or hybrid MS, charged aerosol detector (CAD): Automated method development system (AMDS).

Outcome of the programme: Open feedback was collected from the faculty member and they convey that the program was extremely helpful for covering the topics related to information which is useful for the welcome progress for the analytical chemist working in this rapid development world of drug development.

About programme

It is a one week offline faculty development programme. The main aim of the programme is provide information about various medication errors and the measures to reduce adverse effects which helps the faculty to pursue in research work.

Objectives of programme

- The main Objective of the Program is to increase the awareness about safe medication usage inpatients.
- Medication safety is a global concern among healthcare providers where medication errors can lead to impact safety of patients
- Fatigue, personal carelessness, heavy workload, inadequate staffing and high nurse/patient ratios are the important and effective factors causing medication errors

Venue: Seminar Hall,
SV College of Pharmacy.

Objective:

Sri Venkateshwara College of Pharmacy had successfully Organized A One Week Faculty Development Program On Current Medication safety challenges that impact Patient Safety. The main Objective of the Program is to increase the awareness about safe medication usage in patients.

Topics Covered:

1. Explore how can an understanding of human factors help to reduce medication error and improve medication safety
2. Evaluate ability to pay for medication; explore alternative medications or payment means
3. Comprehensive review of patient's full medication regimen to ensure medications work well together and avoid problems (e.g., interaction)
4. Determine current patient status and medication effectiveness; provide guidance regarding medication therapy

Outcome of the programme:

Open feedback was collected from the faculty members and they convey that the program was extremely helpful for them so that they can guide safe usage of Medication by Patients, misuse of medication, how and when to take medication according to the prescription.
